Particulars of the Indian Revolt in Sonorn-Carrible Details of Incendiarism and Slaughter-Indiscriminate Massacre of Youth and Age-Ravished Wamen Perish in the Flames of Their Own Houses-The Entire Country Laid

A letter to the San Francisco (Cal.) Even ng Bulletin, gives this important news from onora, the writer dating from Hermosillo, the 5th of September:

the 5th of September:

The Yaqui revolt, which promises fair to become a revolution, has assumed a new phase and attained an importance which, one short week ago, none would have conceived possible. Toward the close of August, the bands of armed insurgents, some one thousand or twelve hundred strong, sallied from their coverts in the Yaqui, and inch thousand or tweive numbered strong, sailled from their coverts in the Yaqui, and marched toward Guaymas, marking their track by devastation and rapine. They followed the route of El Batamotal, barning and leveling all before them as far as El Aguila, where they made a stand, on receiving the rows of the water recentless which again, where they made a stand, on receiv-ing the news of the warm reception which awaited them at the port. Youth and age perished in one common massacre; and the females, still more unfortunate, after being forced to submit to the vilest indignities, were consumed in the flames which de-arroyed their houses.

The terrified Guayamenos fortified the town, declaring it in a state of siege, and armed 350 men in its defense, the Emma Florence, just arrived from San Francisco being engaged as a place of retreat for the aged, infirm women and children. The prefect dispatched a courier to the Governor, at Hermosillo, demanding additional aid. The requisition reached here at two P. M. of the 31st, and by nine, Pesquiera, with a hasty levy of sixty horses and eighty inhasty levy of sixty norses and eighty in-fantry, was en route to effect a junction with El Cachora, in La Misa—intending, with the 300 additional troops he would find there, to surprise the Indians, then supposed to be lying at El Aquilita.

Unfortunately the Yaquis had spies as efficient as those of government, and, duly apprised of the intended attack, laid an ambitional attack. apprised of the intended attack, faid an am-buscade at Jacalites, a wretched village about fourteen leagues from Hermosillo, which proved perfectly successful. Of the raw levies, all who did not fall at the first fire broke and fied, leaving the governor and Gen. Angel Trias, of Chihuahua, who accompanied him, with some eight or ten of the body-guard, to face 600 well-armed savages as best they might. Their horses were shot under them, but they finally succeeded shot under them, but they finally succeeded in escaping on animals captured from the enemy, and joined El Cachora in La Mise, the scene of the defeat of Borinda, captain of the forces of Gandara, which gave the death-blow to the hopes of that party. The few survivors from Jacintos fought their way into Mise, having lost arms, baggage, the seal of the State, all the government stamped paper, and many important documents.

Asecdore of Handel and his "Messiah."
When Handel's "Messiah" was first performed in London, the audience were exceedingly struck and affected by the music r general; but when the chorus struck up, For the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth," "For the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth," they were so transported that they all, together with the king, (who happened to be present) started up, and remained standing till the chorus ended; and hence it became the fashion in England for the audience to stand while that part of the music is performing. Some days after the first exhibition of the same oratorio, Mr. Handel came to pay his respects to Lord Kinnoul. His lordship, as was natural, paid him some compliments on the noble entertainment which he had lately given the town. "Mr lord." said he had lately given the town, "My lord," said Handel, "I should be sorry if I only entertained them; I wish to make them better.

It is positively asserted in the New York Courrier des Etats Unis, in an article on the ball to the Prince of Wales, that of that famous festival "the pantaloons of the venerable Peter Cooper were the most curious ornament. These ambitious pantaloons," adds the careful chronicles." adds the careful chronicler, "came up on the breast to the neighborhood of the cravat, and at each bow made by the obsequious millionsire the top button bloomed out in the opening of the vest, like a third eye opened wide in order the better to admire Highness."

Unique Answer of a Sunday-scho Girl.—A little girl, whose parents had re-cently been ejected from their lodgings on account of their inability to pay their rent, was at a German Sunday-school, when the was at a German Sunday-school, when the teachers questioned—"Have you read your catechism?" "Yes, sir," "Do you know the history of the creation?" "God made the history of the creation?" "Why the distory of the creation? "God made the world and our first parents." "Why were Adam and Eve expelled from Para-dise?" "I suppose because they couldn't pay the rent!"

WHAT BOSTONIANS REGARD AS AMIABILITY AND ACCOMPLISHMENTS. - Amiability and accomplishments are manifested in a peaccomplishments are manifested in a peculiar manner in Boston. One of the papers of that city says that an "amiable and accomplished" young lady, recently married, being locked out of her chamber by her husband, whose temper was variable, seized an ax, dashed in the panels of the door, and railed at her spouse through the hole with such violence that he capitulated in fright.

No Hope for the French Grape Caor.— The Revue Bourguignomes says: "No illusion can be any longer entertained as to this year", wine crop, it will be decidedly bad, whatever the weather may be between this time and the vintage. The continued rains have rendered the evil irreparable. With respect to quality, 1860 will remind one of the worst years that can be remembered."

A LITTLE BOY REWARDED FOR HIS HU-MANITY.—The track of the Wilmington and Atlanta Railroad was washed away by rain in the night, not long ago, and a little boy discovering the damage, walked up the track and stopped a coming train in time to prevent a dreadful catastrophe. The little fellow is to be sent to the Georgia Military Institute, at the expense of the State. Another Horrible Mystery Explained-A Pretty Factory Girl Abducted, Outraged and Strangled.

The Troy, (N. Y.) Times says that about three years ago a young woman named Catherine H., employed in one of the collar factories of the city—a good-looking, intelligent and spirited girl—disappeared from her home. She left in the early evening, saying that she was going to a ball, and did not return. Her clothing was all left behind, uscalled for. Diligent inquiries were made, She had been seen at the ball until after midnight, but no one knew when she left for home, or in whose company. An advertisement published in the Times produced no answer. Time passed, and the minds of her relatives settled upon the conclusion that she must have abandoned home—eloping, perhaps, in company with some seducer; perhaps going off alone to seek excitement and amusement in a vortex of dissipation The Troy, (N. Y.) Times says that about and amusement in a vortex of dissipation elsewhere. The conclusion was favored by her known repugnance to her employment here—and her love of display and festiv-

But within a few days, the almost banished subject has been revived by the receipt of an anonymous letter which conveys the startling announcement that Catherine was murdered; that, on leaving the ball, in company with a young man, they proceeded to-gether to a block above, and took a carriage, after driving a short distance, three other fellows got into the carriage; that, instead of taking the girl home, they started together for the Albany-road, and when she remonstrated, stifled her voice by placing a shawl over her head; that, after perpetrating hor-rible outrages, the ruffians killed Catherine by strangling her and threw her body into the Island Creek, below Albany—her clothing, with the exception of the under gar-ments, being destroyed, and that the body was found three or four weeks after the crime, near Hudson, but being in such a con-dition as not to be recognized, was buried by the coroner.

The writer gives the names of two men who are in the State Prison as being parties to the crime; says the driver, who was in complicity and equally guilty with the others, died about six months ago of de-lirium-tremens, and the two other assassins are still living, one in Troy and the other in Extraordinary Force of Volcanoes. Cotopaxi, in 1738, threw its fiery rockets 000 feet above its crater, while in 1744 the 3,000 feet above its crater, while in 1744 the blazing mass struggling for an outlet, roared so that its awful voice was heard at a distance of more than 600 miles. In 1797 the crater of Tunguragua, one of the great peaks of the Andes, flung out torrents of mud, which dammed up rivers, opened new lakes, and in valleys of 1,000 feet wide, made deposits 600 feet deep. The stream from Vesuvius, which, in 1737, passed through Torre del Greco, contained 33,600,000 cubic feet of solid matter, and, in 1794, when Torre del Greco was destroyed a second Torre del Greco was destroyed a second time, the mass of lava amounted to 45,000,000 cubic feet. In 1679 Etna poured forth a flood which covered eighty-four square miles of surface, and measured nearly 100,000,000 cu-bic feet. On this occasion the sand and scorie formed the Monte Rossi, near Nicolosi, a cone two miles in circumference and 4,000 feet high. The stream thrown out by Eina, in 1810, was in motion, at the rate of a yard per day, for nine months after the eruption; and it is on record that the lavas of the same mountain, after a terrible cruption, were not thoroughly cooled and consolidated ten years after the event. In the eruption of Vesuvius, A. D. 79, the scories and ashes vemited forth far exceeded the entire bulk of the mountain, while in 1660 Etna d'sgorged more than twenty times its own mass. Yesuvius than twenty times its own mass. Yesuvius has threwn its ashes as far as Constantino ple, Syris and Egypt; it hurled stones, eight pounds in weight, to Pompeli, a distance of six miles, while similar masses were tossed up 2,000 feet above its summit. Cotopaxi has projected a block of 109 cubic yards in volume a distance of nine miles, and Sumbawa, in 1815, during the most terrible crupon record, sent its ashes as far as Java a distance of 300 miles of surface, and out of a population of 12,000 souls only twenty-six escaped.—Recreative Science.

A BRIEF CHAPTER ON HATS AND GRAVATS. The New York correspondent of the Charleston Mercury furnishes the following paragraph concerning hats and cravats:

A word about men's fashions. The tendency, of late years, you know, has been toward the outre English style. The Prince's visit has done something to encourage this visit has done something to encourage this imitation of the Anglican modes, even to the extent of copying the abominable hats which every body in the Royal party wore, from the Prince downward. Such a collection of shocking bad hats was never seen, except on scarecrows in a cornfield. They all had wide brims, or else turned up awkwardly at the edges, and had a dull luster, as if they had been extensively rained upon. The the edges, and had a dull luster, as if they had been extensively rained upon. The Duke's hat was eminently seedy, and no New Yorker with the slightest regard for his reputation would have been hired to wear it down Broadway. The Earl of St. Germans sported a still shabbier tile, of the bell-top pattern. Lord Lyon's castor had a decided appearance of having been sat on several times and then punched out into a rude resemblance of its original shape, which rude resemblance of its original shape, which was a very bad one. The younger members of the party exhibited a slightly-advanced taste in respect to their hats, but there was not one among the whole collection which an American hatter would have dared to send out of his store as a specimen of his own manufacture.

The correspondent of the Mercury is a man of taste; he holds our opinion of the apparel and head-coverings of the Prince and his suite.

Lamartine's Two Wives.—Lamartine has been married twice. His first wife was a Frenchwoman, and the mother of his lost Julia, the angel of his life.

"Don't speak to me of my lost Julia," he said, one day, with tears in his eyes, "I have not the courage to support the full memory of that solemn scene. She fall like a rose in the desert, and I brought the dead flower home with me, that I might worship its asbes."

His second wife is an Englishwoman, whe, it is said, had a large fortune, which he has spent. Be this as it may, she is devoted to Madame Lamartine is a woman of talent, if not of genius. The walls of her salon are ornamented with works of art of much merit, from her own pencil. The union of the poet and the painter forms a beautiful harmony. THE PRINCE OF WALES A CLEVER DRAFTS-MAN.—The New York Home Journal says: We have been shown a clever specimen of We have been shown a elever specimen of the talent of the Prince of Wales as a draftsman. It is a fac simile of a sketch of a knight of the olden time engaged in conflict. The arrow of an enemy has struck the ground within a few inches of his left foot, and the knight, with drawn sword, stands back indignant. The sketch was made to sell, and the proceeds were devoted to the Patriotic Fund, raised in 1855, for the relief of the widows and orphans of the British soldiers who fell in the Crimea. It is a spirited sketch, honorable to the abilities of the Prince, who was only thirteen years of age when it was executed.

Downt of a Franch Sungson's Daugh-Ter.—The daughter of Velpeau, the cele-brated surgeon, was married in Paris re-cently, to Moos. Deineau, one of the Emp-ror's chamberlains. Velpeau gives his daughter $300,000 dowry, and a from of $16,000.

Since the departure of Fuad Pasha from Syria, the Musselmans had recommenced the massacre, and killed twenty Christians. The emaining Christians were emigrating to Latakia.

The Musselmans were furious against the Christians, and had threatened the life of the lussian Consul.

Italy.-The new pro-dictator of Naples as soon as he was appointed, addressed a letter to Mazzini, complimenting him on his pat-riotism, but asking him to give a proof of it by leaving the country, telling him, without even intending it, he caused disunion; that many used his name with the intention of hoisting another fing in Itsle hoisting another flag in Italy.

There is a probability of a Congress on the affairs of Italy.

The Daily News's correspondent at Naples ays an Italian had been killed, whose auxiety for the result of the battle of Valturino led him too far in advance and he was to be the control of the con him too far in advance, and he was unfortu-nately shot. His funeral services have been performed in all the churches in Rome. The Post's Paris correspondent telegraphs that no protest in a diplomatic sense has been made by Russia, Austria and Prussia against the entry of the Sardinian troops against the entry of the Sardinian troops into Neapolitan territory.

Austria.—The Paris correspondent of the Times remarks that a movement of the Austrian trains need not take persons by surtrian trains need not take persons by surprise. Austria considers herself released from all obligations with the French Emperor; and, having good reasons to know that that government is bent on exterminating her, is prepared. A private letter from Turin announces that a large armament has been ordered by the Piedmontese Government, and the day before the Sardinian ministers departure from Paris a supply of ment, and the day before the Sardinian ministers departure from Paris, a supply of 50,000 muskets, and 11,000,000 percussion caps was granted by the French Government to its ally—Sardinia and Naples.

The Constitutionnel contains an article, signed by M. Boniface, in which he says it does not belong to any foreign State, no more to Sardinia than to Austria, to intervene in Naples and Sicily. Between the invasion of Garibaldi and Sardinia there is a great difference. Garibaldi came to raise and direct a revolution in the interior. With his bands he would only communicate to them bands he would only communicate to them a proper spirit in their struggle against an unpopular government.

The Sardinian invasion constitutes a direct intervention of one regularly-constituted State in the affairs of another independent State. Strange to say, the Sardinian invasion took place without any declaration of war, the representative of the King of Naples being still in Turin. By the entrance of Piedmontese troops

Into the Roman State, Sardinia has violated principles of neutrality. Count Cavour gave it to be understood that the entry of Sardinian troops into the States of the Church was principally di-rected against the influence of Garibaldi. Now, on the contrary, it has become evident that they go to aid him.

Mr. Boniface deplores the conduct of the Sardinians. The Patric says that Garibaldi thanked the seamen of the English ship Renown who served the Garibaldian guns on the 1st. The men were that day on leave of absence.

The Piedmontese troops were expected before Capua on the 18th Inst. It was anticipated that the Neapolitans would evacuate the place before their arrival, and retire to Gaeta.

Lamertine's Opinion of the Intellect of the United States - His Bitter Prejudice Against Americans.

In yesterday's Parss we published an ex-tract detailing an interview in Paris between "Estelle," (Estelle Anna Lewis, we believe,) a poetess of some reputation, and Lamar-tine, and now add some thing more from the same source:

"If you would go to New York and give a course of lectures," said Estelle, "you would make enough to pay your debts," I added.
"Sons doute, they would give their twenty-five sons to see me once, as they would give it to see a wild beast; then it would end. They would not come a second time. I'll not gratify their curiosity," he said, impatiently. "You would like to meet our poets, I am sure," I continued.

"You have no poets! Soul can not live

"You have no poets! Soul can not live and grow there; it starves!" he retorted.
"Oh, yes, we have poets," I went on. "We kave Bryant, Halleck, Longfellow, Willis, Holmes, Morris, Sprague, &c."
"They might have been poets!—great ones, if they had had the proper nutriment. Come to see me every day, but don't bring an American gentleman with you; I will not receive him if you do," he said, as I rose to leave. ave. "You are prejudiced, Monsieur Lamartine,"

I rejoined.
"Pas du tout," he replied; "the Americans hate me because I am poor, and I return the compliment most cordially."
"You have many friends in America," I said.

"I thought so, Mademoiselle, but I was mistaken. I thought your great American publisher, Monsieur Appleton, my friend, but I erred. He is rich, powerful, and could have aided my plans."
"I assure you. Monsieur Lamartine that if "I assure you, Monsieur Lamartine, that i Monsiour Appleton failed to carry out your wishes, it was not because he did not desire to do so. He is a high-minded and honorable gentleman, and feels an interest in genius beyond dollar and cents." I replied.

THE PERTTY ACTRESS THAT PLAYED THE DICKERS—The Manner in which Mrs. Dickens Became Jealous of her Husband and was Divorced.—Dickens purchased the country seat of Gadshill some years ago, as he had always desired to do from its Shakspeareian aways desired to do from its charspeareian associations, and was anxious to remove there, that he might better conduct his literary labors. Mrs. Dickens was attached to London life and would not go to the country; entreaties were vain; she was in-exorable. Dickens accordingly repaired to exorable. Dickens accordingly repaired to Gadshill with his daughter, and, for hersake, invited an amiable and meritorious actress

Mrs. Dickens heard of this; the actress was pretty—unpardonable crime—Mrs. Dickens became jeslous; bitter feeling ensued be-tween the famous author and his consort; resulting in divorce, and—should we say so?—in the husband's increased freedom and happiness. Who will say after this that the stage does not benefit humanity?

DEATH AND FORGETFULNESS.—So lately dead; so soon forgotten. 'Tis the way of the world. We flourish for a white. Men take us by the hand, and are anxious about the health of our bodies, and laugh at our jokes, and we really think, like thefly on the wheel, that we have something to do with the turning of it. Some day we die and are buried. The sun does not stop for our funeral; every thing goes on as usual; we are not missed in the streets; men laugh at new jokes; one or two hearts feel the wound of affliction, one or two memories still hold our affliction, one or two memories still hold our names and forms; but the crowd moves in its daily circle; and in three days the great waves sweep over our steps and wash out the last vestige of our earthly footprints.

THE COAL FROM WHICE OIL IS MADE.—Coal? oil is not made from ordinary bituminous coal, which contains too much sulphur for the purpose. It is extracted from cannel coal—a tough and more valuable variety, immense seams of which are to be found in Virginia and elsewhere. Kerosene oil is not ware coal oil but a pilyare coal oil. pure coal oil, but a mixture of that with lard oil. Paraffine is a mineral substance, extracted from cannel coal, and resembling spermaceti in its appearance and qualities. Refined coal-oil is a solvent of gutta-percha and India-rubber.

DECLINE OF CATHOLICISM IN A NOBLE DECLINE OF CATHOLICISM IN A NORLE FAMILY.—A few years ago the Catholic Church lost the English Earldom of Shrewsbury, by the death of the Earl—his descendants having embraced the Protestant faith. And now another "noble convert" to Protestantism is reported, in the young Lord Beaumont, of one of the oldest Catholic families in England. The Leeds Mescury announces the reception of the young nobleman into the Established Church, as marking the 'downfall of the Papacy' in that ing the 'downfall of the Papacy' family.

ENGLAND.—It has been estimated that the currency required in the United States does not ordinarily exceed $0 per inhabitant, of which, at the utmost, only one-quarter is in coin. In England it amounts to $28, of which one-third is in coin, while in France it is probably double the first-named sum—the largest portion in cole. the largest portion in coin. TOAD-EAVING INSANITY.—Dr. Tyler, of a New York Asylum, states that it is a com-mon propensity among the patients to swal-low toads; and there is now in the asylum an insane man who has swallowed half a dozen live toads without injury.
